

The Most Effective Form of Communication on April 18— Silence

By: Michael R. Komo

On Wednesday, April 18, students in every grade participated in the National Day of Silence at McDowell High School. This year, over 300 students in grades nine through 12 took a vow of silence.

The Day of Silence is a student-led day of action where people who support making anti-LGBT bias unacceptable in school are silent for a day. Participants include LGBT students and their supporters.

The Gay-Straight Alliance at school organized the event, like it does every year. I am the President but could not have set everything up by myself. I had the help of my co-officers in order to make the day as successful as we could. Last year, there were just over 250 participants. This year, there were over 300 participants. I achieved my goal for participation for the event this year. Although I will not be at McDowell next year, nor will I be presiding over the GSA, I set the goal at 350 students for the 2008 Day of Silence.

I am confident in the support of our students. There is no doubt in my mind that the number of supporters will grow each year. Discrimination against LGBT people is becoming more unacceptable everyday. People are not sitting by and letting it happen. They are taking action to help ensure that one day it will cease to exist.

4th of July Parade

from Tim Reim

Anyone interested in participating in the Millcreek July 4 Parade is invited to gather 10 AM on July 4 at the vicinity of 12th St. and Marshall Ave. (the Erie Insurance building and also former site of Lizzy Bordon's.) Look for the Erie Peace and Justice banner.

All Erie County progressives, GLBT folks, their friends, families and supporters are invited to walk the parade route. Our community needs to see that there are thousands of committed citizens looking to make our community/world a better place to live, grow and play. Currently groups invited to join this progressive parade group include the Erie Peace and Justice Center, EGN/ Pride, the Green Party of Erie County, LEAD, the Erie Peace Initiative and the Benedictine and St. Joseph Sisters. Other groups that are invited to march are Erie Central Labor, the Erie County Environmental Coalition, various college affiliations and the Meadville Women in Black. Organization banners are permitted, but individual signs with political messages are not.

From Michael Mahler: we had a few GLBT folks marching in last year's parade, after hearing about the plans to march relatively close to when the event happened. We had no problems worth mentioning and lots of folks smiled and waved! It was truly a fun experience!

What is the Erie Summer Festival of the Arts all about?

by Scott Palermo

The 39th Erie Summer Festival of the Arts is about strolling through Pepsi Liberty Park, enjoying the juried crafters and what they have to offer, and watching the artists do art works.

You can attend various concerts on the main stage that have featured such performers in the past as: Chuck Mangione, The Four Tops, Juice Newton, BJ Thomas, Lee Greenwood and the Paul Winter Consort to name just a few.

Look at the Erie Times News Showcase on Thursday June 21, for the schedule and who will perform on the main stage. You can enjoy the professional juried art exhibit, now called the Ruth Jageman Panorama Juried Art Exhibit, after the longtime advocate of the arts. The art show is on display at Blasco Library. Have your children enjoy making a few craft items, get their faces painted, listen to story time, watch a puppet show, listen to a concert especially geared to children.... all in a safe environment!

You can satisfy your hunger with the offering of the many juried food vendors available on site at a reasonable cost. You can place a blanket or a lawn chair and listen to some great music while you watch the sun set over the bay while a few sailboats float by.

The 39th Erie Summer Festival of the Arts will take place on June 22 - 24 at the Pepsi Liberty Park. The theme of this year's festival is "You've got to have Arts!" This is a family oriented three day event.

This festival and its Board of Directors is all volunteer, who raise the monies needed to bring this Summer Festival of the Arts to the Erie Community for free each year! Some of our supporters are: Northwestern Port Authority, Scott Enterprises, Smith Provisions, Millcreek Township, Erie County Council, PA Lottery, Mazza Wines, PA State House, to name some on the long list. Thanks to the efforts of hundred of volunteers and the ongoing support of every segment of the community, the Erie Summer Festival of the Arts has survived and grown for the past three decades.

In 2006 the presidency was assumed by Betty McCleery after Prof. Annmarie George, and a well-known arts advocate, the late Ruth Jageman, under whose leadership, the festival expanded and took on a new vibrancy. Again, the dates of festival are: June 22, 23, 24, 2007. Let's remember the memory of Ruth Jageman and we invite you to come and support the festival..... If you would like to volunteer or become a sponsor of the Erie Summer Festival of the Arts, you may contact President Betty McCleery at (814) 838-1422 or her assistant Scott Vince Palermo at (814) 866-6816.

Gay Rights Group Launches Campaign Against Religious Right

In an effort to prevent religious conservatives from pressuring presidential candidates to oppose gay-rights issues, LGBT advocates have launched a campaign to challenge the far right in the early primary and caucus states.

Faith In America, the group heading the campaign, is focusing on Iowa, South Carolina, New Hampshire and Nevada. The group's goal is to set the tone for the presidential campaign and not cede the debate to the religious right.

"The end point will be when we have various religious leaders not trying to intimidate various presidential candidates," said Mitchell Gold, head of the group.

The group plans a town hall meeting in Ames, IA on May 31, with similar efforts planned in the other early-voting states. To get their message out to the voters, the group plans grassroots organizing, direct mail and paid advertisements in traditional media in those states.

Iowa, the first caucus state, has dealt with several gay issues this year. During the recent legislative session, Iowa lawmakers worked to protect students from being bullied because of their sexual orientation, and they added gays and lesbians to the list of people protected under the state's civil rights laws.

Steve Scheffler, head of the Iowa Christian Alliance, said his group would continue letting candidates know it opposed expansion of gay rights.

"It is a defining issue," Scheffler said. "Those are going to be some of the issues we are going to cover. You bet it's a big thing."

Expanded Hate Crime Bill Protects LGBT Individuals

The U.S. House of Representatives has voted to expand federal hate crime categories to include violent attacks against gays and people targeted because of gender. Similar legislation is being considered in the U.S. Senate but the White House is already threatening to veto the measure.

The House bill, which passed by a vote of 237-180, would also make it easier for federal law enforcement agencies to take part in or assist with local prosecutions involving bias-motivated attacks. Locally, Congressman Phil English of Erie voted for the bill while Congressman John Peterson of Pleasantville opposed it.

“This is an important vote of conscience, of a statement of what America is, a society that understands that we accept differences,” said House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer (D-MD).

The vote came after fierce lobbying from both civil rights groups, who support the measure, and social conservatives, who claim the bill threatens the right to express moral opposition to homosexuality.

In announcing its opposition, the White House said state and local laws already cover the new crimes defined under the bill and there was “no persuasive demonstration of any need to federalize such a potentially large range of violent crime enforcement.”

“Our criminal justice system has been built on the ideal of equal justice for all,” said Rep. Lamar Smith (R-TX). “Under this bill justice will no longer be equal, but depend on the race, sex, sexual orientation, disability or status of the victim.”

In a parliamentary move that would have effectively killed the bill, Republicans tried to add seniors and the military to those qualifying for hate crimes protection. That effort was defeated on a mainly party-line vote.

Under current federal law hate crimes apply to acts of violence against individuals on the basis of race, religion, color, or national origin. Federal prosecutors have jurisdiction only if the victim is engaged in a specific federally protected activity such as voting.

The House bill would extend the hate crimes category to include sexual orientation, gender, gender identity or disability and give federal authorities greater leeway to participate in hate crime investigations.

According to FBI statistics, there have been more than 113,000 hate crimes reported in the United States since 1991. Racially motivated bias accounted for 55 percent of those incidents, religious bias for 17 percent, sexual orientation bias for 14 percent and ethnicity bias for 14 percent.

McCain says Gay Troops Pose “Intolerable Risk”

In a letter to the Servicemembers Legal Defense Network, U.S. senator and Republican presidential candidate John McCain said that gay troops pose “an intolerable risk” to national security.

“I believe polarization of personnel and breakdown of unit effectiveness is too high a price to pay for well-intentioned but misguided efforts to elevate the interests of a minority of homosexual service members above those of their units,” McCain said in the April 16 letter to the group.

“Most importantly, the national security of the United States, not to mention the lives of our men and women in uniform, are put at grave risk by policies detrimental to the good order and discipline which so distinguish America’s armed services.”

McCain, who voted in favor of the current “don’t ask, don’t tell” policy when it was enacted in 1993, concluded that “I remain opposed to the open expression of homosexuality in the U.S. military.”

“Senator McCain’s comments are out of step with the overwhelming majority of the American people, and out of touch with the best interests of our armed forces,” said Sharra Greer, the

LGBT Rights Bills Becomes Law in Oregon

Oregon has joined a growing list of states offering same-sex couples some of the benefits of marriage.

The state's governor, Democrat Ted Kulongoski, has signed legislation creating domestic partnerships for same-sex couples in the state starting Jan. 1. He also signed a bill that outlaws discrimination based on sexual orientation, effective the same date.

In signing the bills, Gov. Kulongoski, said they would "transform our state from one of exclusion to one of complete inclusion."

The domestic partnership law will enable same-sex couples to enter into contractual relationships that carry many of the benefits offered to married couples. The other law will ban discrimination against LGBT people in employment, housing and access to public accommodations.

To date, only Massachusetts allows same-sex couples to marry. Vermont, Connecticut, California, New Jersey, Maine and Washington have laws allowing either civil unions or domestic partnerships, and Hawaii extends certain spousal rights to same-sex couples and cohabiting heterosexual pairs.

The New Hampshire legislature recently passed a civil unions law that Gov. John Lynch, a Democrat, has said he will sign.

Immigration Equality Bill Introduced in Congress

Federal lawmakers have reintroduced a bill in Congress giving Americans with same-sex foreign partners equal rights under U.S. immigration law.

The Uniting American Families Act, sponsored by Rep. Jerrold Nadler (D-NY), and Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT), will allow citizens and legal residents in same-sex relationships to sponsor their partners for immigration purposes.

According to Immigration Equality and the Human Rights Campaign, about 75 percent of the immigrant visas (Green Cards) currently in effect are issued to family members of U.S. citizens or permanent residents. Same-sex couples however, have no legal status under federal law.

"The promotion of family unity has long been part of federal immigration policy, and this bill promotes that principle by providing all Americans the opportunity to be with their loved ones," said Rachel Tiven, executive director of Immigration Equality.

A University of California study, based on the 2000 Census, reported that there are an estimated 35,820 bi-national same-sex couples in the United States.

"Our bill recognizes that American families come in all shapes and sizes," Rep. Nadler said. "Our laws should work to keep loving families together and not tear them apart."

At least 19 nations, including Great Britain, Brazil, Australia and most of Western Europe, provide some immigration benefits to the same-sex partners of citizens and permanent residents.

The Upper Room

By Rev. Richard A. Moyer

I never really liked school. So, it surprised me when I finished four years of college and then three years of seminary. This was a cause for celebration but first I needed a little peace and quiet to let it all sink in.

I decided the best place to be alone with my thoughts was the chapel. However upon entering I soon decided this was not going to be the best place. There were people talking in the corner, the custodian was sweeping the floors and the chaplain was cleaning off the alter. Since this place was not going to work, I hurried across campus and found a little room under the stairs in the dorm where all was quiet and the noise of the world was locked out.

Life is like that. Those places and times we are certain should give us opportunity for spiritual rest and relaxation, turn out to be noisy and confused. Sometimes we have to find refuge in more unlikely places. This is the backdrop of the situation we read about in John, chapters 13-14. The sayings of Jesus that we read were said not in the Temple or even in a synagogue.

We might expect the words of Jesus to be said in some holy place or shrine since Jesus is after all, preaching a sermon. And its actually one of the most important sermons Jesus ever preached. But, he is not at a pulpit when preaching it. He is not even in a place of worship. He and his disciples are sitting at a dining room table.

More than once, in an upper room, Jesus told his disciples that they were not to be troubled. Even though fearful events were in the future, they were not to be alarmed because God was with them. So from that little room, that crowded space, that very ordinary situation, Jesus gave them big, great, reassuring, profound thoughts.

I was once asked a question that I could not answer. "Why were there synagogues in Jesus' day?" They had the Temple which was beautiful beyond description, with gold and silver and the wood. Then there were the synagogues dotting the countryside and they were anything but glamorous. They were small and homely in appearance compared to the Temple. So, why have them?

They served an important function in the everyday life of the Jewish believers in Jesus' day. They were little places; the gathering places where traveling rabbis were invited to pray and read scripture and preach.

Jesus knew that the Temple could be very noisy. When he went there to throw the money-changers out, they were shouting like carnival barkers eagerly trying to sell sacrifices to the bidders. It was exciting to worship in the Temple, but, sometimes you need the quiet, little, out-of-the-way synagogues to meditate and pray. Sometimes the little places off the beaten path is the place to meet God.

We must remember that Christianity began at little places like upper rooms, filled with little people who held everyday jobs in little towns much like Nazareth of Galilee. Our Christian faith takes place in the little places of the heart. It is in a small upper room that Jesus tells his disciples that the Holy Spirit will come upon them. The church celebrates the coming of the Holy Spirit on Pentecost Sunday. It is not a glamorous place for the Holy Spirit to make its appearance, but, even Jesus' birth was not glamorous, occurring in an animal filled stable.

Jesus says that the Holy Spirit comes to teach us; to remind; and to give us peace. In other words, the Spirit of God touches us at the small places of our hearts. At those places where we need to be taught the challenges of God's love; that we love one another, even as God has loved us. The Spirit of God moves in the small places and challenges us in ordinary ways and tells us that our hearts need not be troubled either in life or death because God's Spirit comes to our aid no matter where we are.

Ex-Gay Survivor's Conference

On June 26 - July 1, the Annual Exodus International Conference will be in Irvine, California, to promote the false message that gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) people are disordered, sinful, and in need of change.

In response, Soulforce, BeyondExGay.com, and the LGBT Resource Center at the University of California-Irvine are proud to present an interactive, community-building conference featuring the powerful stories of those who have had ex-gay experiences, but now understand that their sexual orientation or gender identity can be lived in ways that are loving and life-affirming.

The Ex-Gay Survivor's Conference: "Undoing the Damage, Affirming our Lives Together" is being held on June 29 - July 1, 2007 at the University of California - Irvine. The Ex-Gay Survivor's Conference is a thoughtful response to the Exodus International Conference being held during the same timeframe. As I am writing this, I just got back from the delightful bowling fundraiser that GLENDA had in Meadville at Plaza Lanes. They had a very good turn out (40-50 people) and just a great feel! Everyone was friendly and pleasant. The group does a lot of volunteer work (like helping at the Humane Society) and networking. They also include straight folks as well. I should probably mention that my bowling skills (okay, let's just say motor skills in general) are pretty crappy, but it felt like a really supportive environment. If you get the chance, check out their next event. We will hopefully have something from them soon.

Is everyone all geared up for the 15th Annual Pride Picnic on June 2? We will see you at the Rotary Pavilion at Presque Isle State Park from 1 to 5 PM. Full details are at <http://picnic.eriegaynews.com>. We are asking folks to register at <http://www.eriegaynews.com/pride/register.php>. (And yes, volunteers are very much appreciated.) Huge thanks to all of the terrific people and businesses that make the event such a success! What really means a lot to me is that we get such a wide variety of people every year. The reason I feel so strongly about having the picnic is that I see it as an important way to build community and make friends.

It was very sad to hear about the passing of Donny Samples. He was a truly kind man, and I don't think that I ever heard him say a mean thing about anyone. Whenever I would be out and see him playing pool, he always had a ready smile and a cheerful word. Sometimes, the most important things that we can do is simply to be friendly and decent human beings.

It's not a particularly gay thing, but I have also been having a blast with the Erie Blogger get togethers over the past year. I think I am probably the only gay person in the group, but it is very welcoming. The last get together was quite diverse: over the course of the evening, I chatted with a disability advocate, a Christian stay at home mom, a film producer (who knew that there were so many films being produced in Erie?), a woman who sometimes performs in erotic videos and a meteorologist. Just like the Pride Picnic, I feel strongly about the emotional tone of a group.

See you at the Pride Picnic on June 2!
