Large GLBT weekend in Chautauqua Sep 11-12

Information from Pat Collins

People from around the tri-state area are invited to a big weekend event on the second weekend in September on the grounds of the Chautauqua Institution.

Among the events being planned are an art show, dances, workshops, speed-dating, a panel discussion and a performance by the Buffalo Gay Men’s Chorus.

“We’re doing this to reach out to some of the smaller communities and rural areas,” said Pat Collins, one of the organizers for the weekend. “We’d like to see more pride groups in these sorts of areas.”

The organizers are publicizing the event in Ohio, northwestern Pennsylvania and western New York.

For more information call Pat at (716)761-6052 or visit their website at www.rainbowprideconnection.net (note that some of the information will be changed in July, so check back).

Miss Erie 10th Anniversary Pageant by Drew Riggs/Angelica Redd

The tenth anniversary presentation of the Miss Erie Pageant held at the Zone was a huge success!

The Zone Dance Club and Drew Riggs/Angelica Redd wishes to congratulate Mistress Vanitay on earning the Miss Erie crown on June 6, 2009. We look forward to a productive and fun filled year with her and Bufflynn Hayes, her first runner up.

As pageant director, I can say everyone involved played equal roles in producing the most fun dragathon in Erie. It was a night full of glitz, glamor and entertainment. All five contestants brought their game and came to win! We hope to see them all more often.

Thanks to Joe, Rob, Rich, Carl, Jason, Justin, Gene, Hank, Brett F, Brett M, Zack, and most of all Celine DaShawn for a wonderful job as Miss Erie 2008. I want to thank all the former Miss Eries that jumped in and donated time and sharing my passion for this event: Michelle Michaels, Taylor Morgan, and Celine

Vertigo has moved from Kirsten

I know, I know. “What, You Moved?” Yes we have moved to 100 Pillow St.

It’s across from the Medicine Shoppe in Butler. Also it’s the building that is kinda next to Papa John’s. We are right on the corner of Pillow and West Cunningham.

The building on Jefferson St. sold and the new owners are turning it into something that I guess doesn’t involve us. But life goes on. It was a great location but Vertigo is about YOU not about how great the building is. So keep supporting us.

Stop in and check out the new place.

GLSEN Pittsburgh Presents first statewide youth conference

from GLSEN

PITTSBURGH -- Unified For Youth -- Pennsylvania’s first statewide conference for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender youth, their straight allies, parents and family members -- kicks off over the weekend of July 17-19, 2009,

Volunteers from the Pittsburgh chapter of GLSEN, the Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network, are collaborating with The Persad Center, Parents, Families, & Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG), and Dreams of Hope, with generous support from The Art Institute of Pittsburgh to affirm and support wellness through workshops, networking opportunities, special guest speakers, and social activities.

Workshops for youth and parents include: What is Gender Identity?, Becoming An Advocate, and Bullying -- An Epidemic. A panel of current college students and parents will answer questions about what to look for and expect from college in the event, Life After High School.

Stephen A. Glassman, chairman of the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission, is the conference’s keynote speaker. He will discuss civil and legal rights, and how young people need to prepare themselves in an evolving society as it pertains to LGBT issues. Mr. Glassman is the first openly gay individual in the country to chair a state gubernatorial commission subject to Senate confirmation, and he is the highest-ranking openly gay appointed official in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. He has appeared as a media spokesperson on television, radio, and in the press on behalf of gay/lesbian/bisexual/transgender civil rights causes and AIDS issues.

Participants will be treated to a “sneak preview” of Out in the Silence followed by a discussion with the co-producers, Oil City, Venango County natives Joe Wilson and Dean Hamer. The film explores the controversy ignited in Wilson’s hometown of Oil City, a conservative small town in the hills of western Pennsylvania, after he and Hamer published their wedding announcement in the local newspaper. Wilson -- drawn back by a mother’s plea for help for her gay teen son who was tormented at school -- takes viewers on an exhilarating journey through love, hate, and understanding in rural America.

Registration for the conference is $25 ($10 per additional attendee from within the same family) which covers all costs for conference materials, admission to the film screening, three meals on Saturday, and breakfast on Sunday. For more information, and to register, please visit www.glsepgh.com to download a registration form that can be mailed with payment to: unified for youth, c/o GLSEN Pittsburgh, P.O. Box 110288, Pittsburgh, PA 15232-0288.

GLSEN, the Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network, is the leading national education organization focused on ensuring safe schools for all students. Established nationally in 1995, GLSEN envisions a world in which every child learns to respect and accept all people, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity/expression. GLSEN seeks to develop school climates where difference is valued for the positive contribution it makes to creating a more vibrant and diverse community. The City of Erie and WQLN Radio bring StoryCorps to Perry Square

The conversation of a lifetime… from WQLN and PBS

StoryCorps, heard on NPR's Morning Edition, will be coming to Erie's Perry Square from July 30th through August 22nd. StoryCorps is an independent nonprofit project whose mission is to honor and celebrate another's life through listening. Since 2003, tens of thousands of everyday people have shared stories and life experiences with family, friends, and their community through StoryCorps. Each conversation is recorded on a CD to take home and share, and a copy is preserved at the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress.

The process is quite easy. Two people go into StoryCorps' mobile unit and sit down to interview each other for about 40 minutes. The interview is conversational and can be about anything you'd like.

Sometimes a grandparent and grandchild participate, or a married couple reminiscing their first date.

Community organizations are encouraged to become a Community Partners, by emailing east@storycorps.org. 3-5 interview slots will be reserved for you at this time. Between July 16th and July 31st anyone can reserve a spot to be interviewed by logging on to www.storycorps.net, visiting www.wqln.org, or calling 800-850-4406.

WQLN Radio, sponsor of StoryCorps will post interviews online, and finish taping if there are any who may not have a chance while StoryCorps is in town. WQLN will also post photos, and viewers will be able to listen to the interviews done by community members. If you are interested be sure to check out the StoryCorps website and sign up to interviews for this interesting experience.

Additional info from Michael Mahler

In addition to individuals being able to make appoints to share their stories, community organizations (like Erie Gay News) can get 3-5 slots to make sure that all aspects of the greater Erie community can be heard.

To clarify: This is not the director of some organization sitting down and being interviewed by a professional journalist. This is 2 people who have some sort of connection sitting down and talking. This is a chance to have our community be part of the conversations taking place and being recorded.

If you and someone are interested in getting a special slot reserved, please contact me ASAP at info@eriegaynews.com or (814) 456-9833!

Community organizations can get slots earlier than the general public, so I want to hear from folks soon.

PA Sen. Daylin Leach introducing equal marriage bill
by Senator Daylin Leach (D-Montgomery)

[Editors’ note: this is the first part of an article originally published in the Harrisburg Patriot News. Read complete article online]

I have recently drafted and am shortly introducing legislation which would cause Pennsylvania to join the other states that recognize same-sex marriage.

I do so now for several reasons. Many other states are moving to consider this issue, including Maine, Vermont and DC which have passed legislation in just the past few weeks. Also, a bill banning same-sex marriage was recently introduced in the Pennsylvania State Senate and it is important to provide the legislature with a timely pro-civil rights, pro-family alternative. But mostly, I feel that every day we spend living under a law which treats an entire category of citizens as second-class, and denies them their fundamental human rights is a profound injustice.

The case for same-sex or gay marriage is a simple one. The state and federal government confer hundreds of benefits upon married couples that are unavailable to single people. This is done to encourage marriage which society considers to be good, for both the couple and for the community at large. We should be doing with gay couples what we do with straight couples; namely encouraging them to enter permanent, monogamous, stable and legally recognized unions.

The arguments against gay marriage are much more complicated. I’d like to briefly address each argument that I’ve heard.

To read full article visit www.eriegaynews.com. Also online is a link to a radio debate between Sen Leach and State Senator John Eichelberger (R-Blair). Eichelberger has introduced a bill amending Pennsylvania’s state Constitution to ban same-sex marriage.

National briefs

June 8

From Time Magazine: When Barack Obama sought the presidency, he pledged to reverse the “Don’t ask, don’t tell” policy preventing gays and lesbians from serving openly in the U.S. military. Yet on Monday, the Supreme Court rejected a gay Ohio soldier’s challenge to the law — with the legal backing of none other than the Obama Administration.

June 12

Several national LGBT legal and advocacy coalition partners have issued a statement decrying the manner in which the Obama administration has defended the so-called Defense of Marriage Act against Smelt v. United States, a lawsuit brought in federal court in California by a married same-sex couple asking the federal government to treat them equally with respect to federal protections and benefits.

Groups issuing this statement include The National Center for Lesbian Rights, Lambda Legal, the ACLU, Human Rights Campaign, GLAD and the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force.

June 17

From the Human Rights Campaign: - In an Oval Office signing ceremony, President Obama signed a Presidential Memorandum granting non-discrimination protections and some same-sex partner benefits for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender federal employees.

“Today’s presidential signature is the first brick in paving what is a long path toward equality for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender Americans. We commend President Obama and his administration for taking this beginning step to level the playing field but we look forward to working with him to repeal the Defense of Marriage Act, overturn “Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell” and guarantee the entire American workforce is free from discrimination,” said Human Rights Campaign President Joe Solmonese.

June 20

From National Gay and Lesbian Task Force: the U.S. Census Bureau will count married same-sex couples in the 2010 census, reversing an earlier decision made under the Bush administration. “This is a huge win for our community,” said NGLTF Executive Director Rea Carey www.thetaskforce.org
Historic vote in Ohio

Anti-Discrimination vote is a first in state’s history

from Do What’s Right Ohio

Columbus, Ohio June 17—With a vote of 8 to 5, House Bill 176, the Equal Housing and Employment Act, passed out of State Government Committee in the Ohio House of Representatives. The committee vote marks the first time in Ohio’s history that a vote has occurred on legislation protecting the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) community in Ohio in either chamber of the General Assembly. The only previous issue to come to a vote in the Assembly related to LGBT issues was the 2003 legislative Defense of Marriage Act (banning same-sex marriage.)

“With their passage of this legislation, the members of the State Government sent a clear message today,” said Lynne Bowman, Executive Director of Equality Ohio, the state’s advocacy organization for LGBT people. “Discrimination based on a person’s sexual orientation or gender identity will not be tolerated in Ohio, regardless of where a person lives, works or plays.”

Testimony in support of the bill during committee hearings came from a broad representation of Ohioans and included Cardinal Health, the Cleveland Clinic, Bishop Ough of the West Ohio Methodist Conference, the Ohio Civil Rights Commission and the Mayor of the city of Springfield. Most compelling though, were the true stories of discrimination shared with the committee.

“People who oppose this bill want to claim that discrimination doesn’t happen in Ohio,” said Dr. Juli Burnell, a psychologist from the Dayton area who provided written testimony. “Through our testimony we showed that, as much as we would like to believe we live in a state where everyone is treated equally, we are not there yet. Including sexual orientation and gender identity in Ohio’s Civil Rights laws is the only way to make clear the public policy of our state when it comes to equal treatment.”

Voting yes were Gerberry, Lundy, Belcher, Williams B., Stewart, Mallory, Sayre, and Hite with Stebelton, Grossman, Adams, Daniels and Hall casting no votes. The bill now moves to consideration by the entire House of Representatives. A vote is not yet scheduled.

Pentecost Means Equality

By Rev. Richard A. Moyer
Pastor, Community United Church

Recently I found an old box in the basement that hadn’t been opened for years. The cardboard was stained with water marks and the contents had the kind of musty odor that is characteristic of stored items that haven’t seen the light of day for sometime. In bold magic marker letters the words “Odds and Ends” were written on the outside of the box.

I knew that those words were an understatement. They really weren’t odds and ends. The box contained a collection of souvenirs from the sale of the grandparents’ house some 30 years ago. They were the things nobody wanted to buy at the auction of the property. “Junk” is what the auctioneer called them. To me they were treasures which few people other than myself could appreciate.

As I rooted through the contents of the fragile box, I found a little book called “The Festival Seasons of the Church Year.” Inside the front cover, with flawless penmanship of a fountain pen, someone had written “Christmas, 1894.”

Each chapter of the book was dedicated to an almost overly-simplistic explanation of each season of the Christian church year. It was probably a children’s book.

Since the next notable Season of the Church Year is Pentecost, I looked up the “Pentecost” entry in the old book. In very simple language, it described the Pentecost events as they are recorded in the Bible (Acts 2): The Apostles were gathered in an upper room where they were given the supernatural ability to speak in languages other than their own.

The Scriptures consider it the miraculous way in which the good news of the Gospel was first delivered to people outside the area where Christianity began—where the common languages were Hebrew, Greek and Aramaic. Now the Gospel would be able to be preached to all people, in all places, in all languages, in a way that no one would be left out.

The sure and certain message of Pentecost is inclusiveness and quality. The gospel is to be proclaimed to all people, equally. The barrier of communication is dismantled, and all people are given equal opportunity to be included in the Christian community.

Eugene Robinson, a Washington Post columnist, wasn’t writing about Pentecost in a recent article, but he was reminding all people (Christian and non-Christian alike) that equality is a good and noble concept, especially in a society that claims that “all people are created equal.” He wrote: “It seems to me that equality means equality, and either you’re for it or you’re not. I believe gay marriage should be legal, and it’s hard for me to imagine how any ‘fierce advocate of equality’ could think otherwise.”

Whether we’re talking about some modern-day social issue or about the traditional observance of the Christian Pentecost, “equality means equality, and either you’re for it or you’re not.”

It seems to me that those Apostles who were present at the first Pentecost were “for it!”

IN THEATRES

Sacha Baron Cohen’s new movie Bruno opens in theatres July 10. The Borat star’s new mockumentary has him posing as a very outrageous gay Austrian fashion reporter. Some GLBT organizations have expressed concern that the character of Bruno will feed anti-gay stereotypes.

From the New York Times, “So it goes for ‘Brüno,’ a movie that, in mercilessly exploiting the discomfort created when straight men are ambushed by aggressive gayness, happens to (surprise!) expose homophobia. Gay groups are reacting with deeply mixed emotions, heightened by the recent triumphs (Iowa) and losses (California) in efforts to legalize gay marriage. Is the film then vulgar, inappropriate and harmful? Or bold, timely and necessary? All of the above?

“Ultimately the tension surrounding “Brüno” boils down to the worry that certain viewers won’t understand that the joke is on them and will leave the multiplex with their homophobia validated.”
